ZUSATZBESCHREIBUNG

Many babies suffer from colic accompanied by painful wind during their first months of life. One of the reasons for this is that the early infantile digestive system has not yet been familiarized with food intake and its digestion.

In order to go easy on the digestive system, an external use should be taken into consideration for a start. A massage specifically against flatulence can support the digestion. Apply the wind ointment around the navel and rub it in gently with easy movements.

Massaging your baby's tummy supports the digestive process to ease slight cramps, flatulence and constipation.

Recommendation

Rub in gently Tamany Wind Ointment with caraway oil regularly after bathing. Soothing and relaxing for mother and child.
